MANY MUSICIANS ON CHARLTON LIST

Sembrich and Gadski Will Again Be Leading Prima Donnas.

Loudon Charlton has issued a circular list of the musical stars under his direction. A number of last year's attractions are retained, while several important additions have been made.

The Charlton prima donnas will con-tinue to be Mme. Marcella Sembrich and Mme, Johanna Gadski, both of the Met-ropolitan Opera House, Mme. Sembrich, aside from her annual New York and Chicago recitals, will devote only a brief period to concert work. Mme. Gadski's operatic engagements will likewise make unusual demands upon ner but two concert tours are being booked, one prior to the opera season, the other -to extend to the Pacific coast-in mid-

There are three planists on the Charlton list-Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the Russian, whose two American visits are well remembered; Katharine Goodson the young Englishwoman, who is to re turn to this country in January after a tour of Australia; and Ernest Schelling, who has won favor both as planist

David Bispham, whose past season has been the most active in his career, will devote the entire season to con work, beginning with a recital in Carnegie Hall early in October, Mr. Bispham is also planning a revival of "Adelaide," a playlet adapted from the German in which he appeared several years ago, playing the part of Beethoven, the pathetic little story's central figure.

George Hamlin, one of America's leading tenors, comes under the Charitan desired the company of the com

ton management. In addition to his ora-torio and concert work, Mr. Hamlin will probably appear in a number of joint recitals with Mr. Bispham. Theodore Spiering, violinist, who has not been heard in America for several years, will make a two months' tour in the winter. Gertrude Lonsdale, an English contralto, who is coming this country in October with the Yorkshire chorus, will extend her stay to fill a series of individual engagements Other artists on the Charlton list are Mary Hissem de Moss, soprano, who has recently added to her prestige through her transcontinental tour with the Damrosch Orchestra; Francis Rogers, on* of the most satisfactory recitalists be-fore the public; Geraldine Morgan, violinist, who will give three New York recitals in addition to her work on tour; Albert Rosenthal and Henry Bramsen, cellists of unquestioned standing; Leila Livingston Morse, soprano, and Cecilia Winter, contralto, young singers who have won a creditable following; and the Flonzaley quartet, which returns to the second see America in December for its second season as a purely professional organization-incidentally one of the best in ex-

It was intended that this exhibition should be placed on view in this city last November, but owing to the improvements in the club rooms of the local society, which were not completed at that time, the exhibit was shipped to the next society in the chain of clubs without being shown in Washington.

The collection now on view consists of some forty-five photographs. In many particulars it differs from the former exhibitions held during the past season. The society contributing the work is probably the second oldest in the interprobably the second oldest in the interproba

Its members have to a degree been isolated from photographic workers in other cities, and nave had but little experience in large exhibitions. Its material for exhibition has but little of a distinctive character. There is no evidence of any controlling spirit who has shaped the direction. Each member seems to have worked in the path best suited to his individual liking. It is an exhibition of the work of individuals, rather than the exhibition of a group animated by a club spirit.

Should the humber of entries be as large, and the works of surficient ment to more than fill the rooms vacated for this purpose, it is probable that the Evans collection of pictures donated to the national gallery will be removed from the walls of the upper atrium to make room for the upper atrium to make room for the upper atrium to the walls of the upper atrium for make room for the upper atrium to the walls of the works of the collection of sculptural works of St. Gaudens was exhibited in New Tork last June. In portraiture the Baltimore society appears to be formal, uncertain, and somewhat doubtful of their own efforts. It is evident that the influence of the professional photographer has hampered independence. In landscapes they have not learned the lesson that it is often the case that a beautiful spot in nature faithfully copied in not an artistic production. This society needs above all things careful study of the elements of composition found in the orks of landscape painters.
